THANKSGIVING

Thanksgiving is my favorite time of year (except for the cold). It's my favorite because everyone eats too much so I can eat without drawing much attention to my portions. That's a good thing for me.

But we need to remember that thanksgiving is more than just a holiday we celebrate once a year. As we bring this holiday weekend to an end, let's do some things:

Let this time be a reminder for us of the great things God has done. We have been so very blessed by our Lord; we ought to count those blessings to the best of our ability. This Thanksgiving holiday pay special attention to the things for which you are thankful. Truly give thanks

Keep that list with you throughout the year. At least once per day reflect on it and tell God thanks for all He has done for you. Don't overeat turkey and dressing every day, but make each day a thanksgiving day. Recall all the wonderful things God has done throughout the year.

Appreciate what God has done. Don't just thank Him in private prayer but in public life. With all the wonderful things you have been given; give something back to Him to show your thanks daily, not just say it. Express your thanksgiving through a life of service

Many of us enjoyed a great time last Thursday. Don't let that be the only time or way in which you give thanks. Be thankful every day and let God know how much you appreciate His generous grace that you enjoy.
