Responding When You Are Blessed

How do you respond when you're blessed? Did you respond gratefully when someone said something nice to you, or did something for you? I hope so.

Picture a wife who spends two hours making a delicious meal for her husband because she wants to give him something special. The husband eats it without comment and then heads straight to the TV. Or picture God answering a prayer, as he did in the Bible when someone asked him for a longer life. But then 2 Chronicles 32:25 says that after this man's answered prayer his "heart was proud and he did not respond to the kindness shown him."

Why do we do that? Why do we ignore blessings? Maybe because we think we are owed these blessings. My wife should make me a two-hour dinner every night, my parents should give me expensive gifts for my birthday. God should keep me healthy and safe. I deserve it and that's their job.

Well, aren't you fun? No one is going to enjoy giving you anything if that's your attitude. I suggest a different approach when you're blessed: appreciate it. Be truly thankful. Otherwise your blessing can become a curse.

Remember In Prayer

Geraldine Burns is in Camden Clark Hospital room 304-A. She is being treated for a blood clot in her lung.

Don Wigal was admitted to Marietta Memorial Hospital. He has the flu and Covid.

Jim Ullom has an appointment in Cleveland on November 16th for a consultation concerning cancer treatments.

David Gregg responded to the invitation last Sunday. He asked for prayers to live a better more faithful life. Be sure to pray for and encourage David.

Too busy To Pray?

Forgive me, Lord, that I allow
My days and hours to be
So filled with trifling tasks that
I find no time for thee.

My thoughts are often occupied
With countless earthly things
When thou would have them mount on high
By faith with eagle wings.

Too busy; O forgive, dear Lord,
That I should ever be
Too much engrossed in worldly tasks
To spend an hour with thee.

A. B. Christiansen
