"A good garden may have some weeds." – Thomas Fuller, M.D.

"Deal with the faults of others as gently as with your own." – Henrichs

No one likes to admit they have faults. Some like to cover them with humor, such as when Mac Davis sang those words, "Lord, it's hard to be humble when you are perfect in every way." Well, if we were perfect in every way we would be exactly like God. Trouble is, we are not. "As it is written: 'There is none righteous, no, not one'" (Rom. 3:10). "For all have sinned and fall short of the glory of God" (Rom. 3:23). "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us...If we say that we have not sinned, we make Him a liar, and His word is not in us" (1 John 1:8,10).

So, no one is perfect. But when it comes to our relationships with others, we need to be a little more understanding and forgiving since we ourselves have our share of faults. Too often people look down upon others for not being as "perfect" as they think they are. Do you remember Paul's humbling words to the church at Rome: "For I say, through the grace given to me, to everyone who is among you, not to think of himself more highly that he ought to think, but to think soberly, as God has dealt to each one a measure of faith" (Rom. 12:3).

In Jesus' famed Sermon on the Mount, He opened with the powerful words, "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven" (Matt. 5:3). Humility is the key to having a wonderful relationship with God. And it takes that spirit of humility to be able to admit that we have faults. And since we know that we do, we need to learn to be more patient with others. If we choose the road of arrogance and a haughty spirit, we may well find ourselves being greatly embarrassed when our faults are exposed.

It is important that we learn to love one another, even though we have faults (John 13:34-35). To do this is to take a giant step forward in our service to the Master.
