Significant

by Mark Aites

“Not even a sparrow falls to earth unheeded.” – Anonymous

Webster defines significant as, “large enough to be noticed or have an effect, very important, having a special or hidden meaning.” This is highly similar to the idea of importance.

However, when looking at the words significant and important, there is a difference. For example, the events of 9/11/2001 were highly significant to the realization that America has its vulnerabilities. We learned that we were not as safe as we thought. Would we regard the events on that day as important? If we do, in what way were they important? Perhaps only in our thoughts of how we might learn to better protect ourselves and that justice is served. Some things then can be significant even though we may not necessarily regard them as important.

There were people and events in Scripture that we might see as significant, but not necessarily important. For example, in John 12, the apostle chose to reveal by inspiration that Judas Iscariot was a thief. We may see that as significant in that it helps us to understand that his heart was not as pure as some have thought. Was it important and necessary that we know this fact? No, for it does not change the fact that he denied the Lord. It merely exposes a side to Judas we might not otherwise have known.

The fall of Jerusalem (A.D. 70) was a significant event in history. It was a devastating time to the Jewish people. Is it a matter of importance from our perspective? No, as it does not alter the importance of the Gospel message. It is something that occurred that we understand was alluded to more than once in Scripture.

There are, however, matters which are significant from the standpoint of our salvation. And in that light, we can see there is an importance if we want to spend an eternity with our Lord.

More Than We Can Bear

Sometimes you hear people say “God will not give you more than you can bear.”

Yet that isn’t biblical.

Yes, God ‘will not allow you to be tempted beyond what you are able’ (1 Cor. 10:13) yet that doesn’t say that there won’t be times you face adversity more than you can handle.

Consider 2 Corinthians 1:8-9. Here Paul says “For we do not want you to be unaware, brethren, of our affliction which came to us in Asia, that we were burdened excessively, beyond our strength, so that we despaired even of life”. The burden on him was more than he had the strength to overcome. To the point, he was ready to be done with life.

Why would God allow that to happen? Let’s read on; “indeed, we had the sentence of death within ourselves so that we would not trust in ourselves, but in God who raises the dead” This excess was so that they would not trust in themselves to overcome but learn to full trust in God.

We might be falling into an arrogant trap in thinking we can handle it all. We can’t. But God can. So, we need to realize we may face things that are too big for us, but they will never be too big for God.
