Discovery by Mark Aites

Discovery is the "act of finding or learning something for the first time: the act of discovering something." (Webster) No, it is not a word found in the sacred text, but there were certainly instances where discoveries were recorded.

In the Old Testament, there was a monumental discovery. "Then Hilkiah the high priest said to Shaphan the scribe, "I have found the Book of the Law in the house of the Lord" (2 Kings 22:8). When king Josiah heard the reading of the law he tore his clothes, a sign of grief that the people had not been following the laws of God.

One of the most noted in the New Testament was that of Peter's new-found truth that the Lord died for the salvation of the Gentiles also. This led to Peter's well-known words, "…Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth Him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with Him" (Acts 10:34-25, KJV).

There likely have been times in your own life when you have made a discovery, relative to Scripture, that you had not noticed before. It is amazing at times to study God's Word and look over a passage and see a truth that previously eluded you. That is part of the growth process.

Discoveries of this nature are only valuable if you have the humility to accept them. While sitting in a class year's ago, an instructor would say with such gentleness, "You have the right to be wrong." Sometimes our pride will not allow us to accept a new-found discovery.

Discovering truth is an exhilarating experience. If we are open to accepting God's Word and let God tell us His truths, it is amazing the things that we can learn.
